3d Armored Division In Gyroscope

a message from the commanding general

TO: The members of the 3d Armored (Spearhead) Division

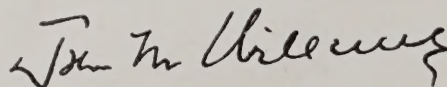

By our sincere and serious effort, we soldiers of the 3d Armored Division are forging a very great combat division.

You have earned for your Division the praise of every visitor and inspector for your magnificent spirit and rapidly acquired professional ability.

I join with you in the pride of being a member of this splendid Division and also in the pride of having shared the long hours of work and hardship that have gone into preparing our Division for its important mission on the Frontier of the Free World.

We can take great personal satisfaction in the knowledge that duty to our country has been well and ably performed. We have done our full part as patriots and soldiers in our service at Fort Knox.

Alert, aggressive, and confident, we Spearheaders stand prepared to serve our great Nation and the causes of Liberty, Justice and Democracy to which our people are dedicated.

HISTORY OF THE 3D ARMY DIVISION

"Spearhead in Peace as in War"

The 3d Armored Division won its famed nickname—the "Spearhead Division"—while leading attacking American forces across Europe during World War II. The term itself came from an oft-used expression of General J. Lawton Collins, VII Corps Commander: "You will spearhead the attack," when giving his orders to Major General Maurice Ross, who was then Division Commander.

Spearheaders have a tradition of "firsts" they are justly proud of: first Americans to enter Belgium, first to fire an artillery shell at German soil, first to break through the Siegfried Line and first to capture a German city.

The war-time Division was activated at Camp Beauregard, Louisiana, in 1941. After forming there, they moved to Camp Polk, Louisiana, for basic training, and then to the Mojave Desert Training Center in California. Still later, the men went to Camp Pickett, Virginia, and Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Pennsylvania. On September 5, 1943, the Division was on the seas headed for Europe.

Training continued in England at a feverish pitch, and on June 23, 1944, forward elements of the Division landed on Omaha White Beach, below Isigny, France. On June 29, Combat Command "A" was committed at Villiers Fossard near St. Lo. For the Spearheaders, it was their baptism by fire, their introduction to combat.

After a slow fight through the Normandy hedgerows, the advance gained a rapid momentum. Within two months, the Division had crossed the Seine River, taking only an additional 18 days to sweep through Belgium.

Next came the cracking of the "impenetrable" Siegfried Line and the crossing to German soil. The once green Spearhead Division was now one of the most feared striking units in the entire United States Army.

During the Battle of the Bulge progress was temporarily halted, but as the German Advance fizzled, the "Spearhead" began rolling again, picking up speed as it moved deeper and deeper into Germany. One of the Division's most famous accomplishments was a one-day advance of 101 miles, the longest in military history. This drive continued until VE Day was officially proclaimed.

After brief occupation duty, the 3d Armored Division was inactivated on November 9, 1945, at Aalen, Germany, but this was not to be the end of the brilliant record.

On July 15, 1947, the 3d Armored Division was reactivated. Action stemmed from a Department of the Army decision to give Replacement Training Centers, as they were then called, the names of war-time divisions noted for outstanding combat records. Military officials saw this as a means of encouraging enlistments and building up morale and "esprit de corps" for both trainees and permanent party.

The 3d Armored Division was one such unit. It had a World War II record that was indeed outstanding. During 221 days of frontline combat, the Division spearheaded nearly every major attack by the United States Army in Europe.

These qualities of aggressiveness and leadership were carried over into training activities. In the summer of 1953, the Division trained the Army's first light infantry "carrier company" composed of four-man "buddy teams," and in January, 1954, it graduated the Army's first Armor "packet platoon."

On March 15, 1955, the present history of the Spearhead Division was launched: the 3d Armored Division was reorganized as a combat division capable of fulfilling its assigned role in NATO defense of the Western World.

A few weeks later, the Department of the Army announced that the 3d Armored Division would become a part of the "new look" in the Army: "Operation Gyroscope," a policy of sending entire units, rather than replacements, abroad.

Events quietly but quickly began to shape themselves. Taking a glimpse at this new phase for the Spearheaders, one sees the fragments of the new picture become a part of the whole effort.

On April 15, 1955, Major General John Willems, from a post in Pentagon-level intelligence, assumes command and immediately sets the wheels in motion to begin the processing and training of the new members of the Division.

During early June, the cadre of the Division ready themselves for the mission of training new men as the 3d Armored Division is brought up to full strength in the months to come. Each who has the mission of instruction realizes he must first know his own job and the skills required, before he must pass it on to those about to join him.

On a certain Monday morning—July 17, an air of expectancy hangs over gathered men. Someone shouts: "Here they come!" The hustle and bustle is the arrival of chartered busses bringing in the first group of personnel to the new 3d Armored Division through induction by selective service.

A New York nation-wide radio-television program, August 4, marks the closing phase of the Spearheader's recruiting program. Stage and television star Martha Wright interviews the new Commanding General who appears with the Fort Dix Band and Soldier Chorus, and Fort Knox's ARTC Honor Guard.

On September 28 the 3d Armored Division goes into the field for the first command Post Exercise whose object is to help the unit near the goal of becoming "combat ready" prior to overseas movement.

Next the largest review parade ever held at Fort Knox goes off smoothly as on October 28, 16,000 men are together marching in a single unit for the first time. Pictures of the event appear in the local papers.

As Christmas decorations begin to appear in the stores and PX's, some two hundred alien wives of 3d Armored Division men successfully complete their naturalization interviews, prior to receiving U.S. citizenship. This takes place while another event is also occupying attention: processing for the movement of the first group of men and dependents to Western Germany on the Advance Party. The move is planned for March, 1956.

With the first mass naturalization since World War II at Fort Knox, battalion tests, and a Division Alert, January proves to be a busy month. As the final week came, the big effort was undertaken, the climax to all the months of training. On January 31, the men successfully braved rugged terrain, sudden rains, and mountains of mud in a division-wide, week-long mock war named "Operation Hercules" which pronounces the 3d Armored Division ready to meet its mission in Germany. All that remains now is the movement of men themselves. By mid-summer all will be at their new destination: Frankfurt, Germany.

To men of the 3d Armored Division, the beginning of a new era is nearing as troops begin the peacetime move under "Operation Gyroscope" to Frankfurt, Germany. To the division which knifed its way across Europe during the tense war-weary days of 1944 and earned the revered nickname of "Spearhead," German soil is no stranger. This time, however, the Americans go in defense of that land itself in their NATO mission in Western Germany.

Under the Army's present policy known as "Operation Gyroscope"—sending entire units, rather than replacements abroad—the 3d Armored Division will be rotated with the 4th Infantry Division.

The Advance Party and dependents—seven hundred and sixty-one military personnel and four-hundred twenty-nine families will begin leaving New York the first of March, to set the stage for the main body.

Nine planes will take off from the United States between the first of March and the 13th, bearing the first team of the Advance Party. The second team leaves between March 19 and March 30, followed by the final advance group April 1 through April 12.

After 18 hours in the air dependents will arrive and be greeted by their counterparts. The opposite will escort them to prearranged quarters and assist the new arrivals in getting settled.

For the hungry man of the house, there will be food in the refrigerator, put there by families of Fourth Infantry Division personnel who will play host for families of the arriving 3d Armored Division.

The mass movement of men, dependents, pets, household goods, and Army equipment has kept many of the various functions of the 3d Armored Division going at a furious pace for months. Each section has been hard at work at its own individual tasks.

Most of the questions confronting both those shipping overseas and those at work administratively have centered about legal requirements, completing forms, pictures, passports, and shots for the dependents, air, rail and sea transportation, deciding which men and units will ship with particular groups, housing for family groups, boxing and crating goods and equipment—plus the overall planning required to accomplish these matters.

"The gyroscope move with the 3d Armored Division will cost hundreds of thousands of dollars and will entail the movement of about twenty-one thousand people—men and dependents. Our job is to get them there quickly, safely, comfortably, and of course, at the least cost to the Government," said Major Melvin Piel, Division Transportation Officer, who has a big part in the move.

"One of the new innovations on the gyroscope transportation will be the three-way tag which has never been used before. Tags will be attached inside the Conex containers used for shipping. The owner gets one part as his claim check, the middle goes to the company commander's file, and the third is secured—fastened, or glued—to baggage or household goods.

"Several thousand of these Conex containers will be used to ship goods and equipment. The Conex container saves the government a couple of hundred dollars on each shipment. It makes for faster handling, less chance of individual pieces or articles being lost. After they have been blocked and braced for shipping, then shipped, they are re-usable," said Major Piel.

To answer the need for increased numbers of men to handle the supply problem, the Division found it necessary to train three classes and set up a supply school to accomplish this. Three hundred and fifty-seven men successfully completed the instruction. The effect of the additional personnel was to better than double the number of qualified men to handle supply matters.

Courses included supply forms; individual clothing equipment; expendable supplies; property transfers; company property books; statement of charges; and procedures for quartermaster, ordnance, signal, medical, chemical, and engineer supply.

Another busy function was the Division Processing Center which was opened on December 6 and through mid-January it had processed more than 1,745 families, and 4,314 dependents. The Medical Section of the center, under the Operation Control of the Division Surgeon's Office, has been busy preparing dependents to meet the medical requirements necessary prior to overseas shipment.

According to 1st Lt. H. E. Sheldon, Officer in Charge of the Medical Section, more than 30,000 immunization shots were administered through mid-January. He stated that at that time, the daily average of shots given amounted to about 1,000, and that no serious complications have arisen as a result of these shots. A large number of families have completed their immunizations and it is expected that immunizations will be complete sometime in March.

Better than 2,000 people have completed passports through mid-January and some 1,500 passport applications were completed and transmitted to the Military District of Washington. The same period saw 300 passports sent to the port in New York to await arrival of the dependents concerned. Passports will reach the port in increasing numbers as the days go by.

Two-hundred and twenty 3d Armored Division dependents were made American citizens on January 6 during a special session of the United States District Court in Sadowski Field House, Fort Knox, in another step to prepare them to meet legal requirements as speedily and easily as possible.

Naturalization Examiner Patrick B. McHugh of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service said the class was one of the largest to be naturalized in many years in his area and was the first class to receive citizenship on the Fort Knox military reservation since the years of World War II. The entire class totaled 227 citizen candidates. Presiding over the ceremony was Federal Judge Roy M. Shelbourne. Twenty-two different countries were represented by the citizen candidates.

Classes in naturalization were started soon after the Division was alerted for duty in Germany. These classes were under the direction of the Division Chaplain, Lt. Col. Maury Hundley, Jr., and his staff. According to the Federal Naturalization Examiner, most of the applicants were very well prepared even though many had been in the country only a short time.

The main body of the division which follows the Advance Party by ship will begin to leave Fort Knox for Germany about April 25. Except for the Advance Party and Rear Detachment, the Division will be shipped in three separate increments: Combat Command "A," first; Combat Command "B," second; and Combat Command "C," third. The Division will occupy the area of Hesse in Western Germany. All are expected to be at their destination by June of this year.

On July 2, 1955 a 3d Armored Division Proclamation Ceremony was held at the World War Memorial Building in Indianapolis, Indiana. This was the beginning of an intensive recruiting program designed to bring the Division up to the required strength for "Operation Gyroscope".

Major General
JOHN MURPHY WILLEMS
Commanding

John Murphy Willems was born in Leavenworth, Kansas, December 24, 1901. He was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy, June 12, 1925, New York, commissioned a second lieutenant of Field Artillery, and assigned as a battery officer with the 15th Field Artillery at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

In April, 1927, General Willems was transferred to Fort Sotsenburg, Philippine Islands, and served two years as officer in charge of stables and assistant executive and reconnaissance officer of a battery of the 24th Field Artillery. In September, 1929, he entered the Field Artillery School at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and completed the battery officers course and the advanced course in horsemanship. In June, 1931, he transferred to the Cavalry School at Fort Riley, Kansas, and completed the advanced equitation course in June 1932. He then returned to Fort Sill as an instructor in the Department of Animal Transportation of the Field Artillery School.

General Willems assumed command of a battery of the Second Battalion, Seventh Field Artillery, at Fort Ethen Allen, Vermont, in September, 1936, and two years later entered the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, from which he was graduated in June, 1939. Two months later he was assigned to the Armory of Mounted Commands at Providence, Rhode Island, where he instructed the 103rd Field Artillery, 68th Field Artillery, 118th Ordnance Company, and a company of the 118th Medical Regiment. In April, 1941, he went to Camp Beauregard, Louisiana, as a member of the 3d Armored Division and remained with the Division Artillery of that Division until transferred to Fort Knox, Kentucky, in August, 1941, as regimental executive of the 65th Field Artillery. He assumed command when the 65th reorganized as a battalion in January, 1942. The following June he was named artillery commander of the Fifth Armored Division at Camp Cooke, California.

General Willems, in October, 1942, became executive officer of the Artillery Section of the Western Task Force for the North African Invasion. In July, 1943, he became assistant artillery officer, and later artillery officer, of the Seventh Army in that theater. While holding the latter position, he also served as chief of staff of the Provisional Corps of the Seventh Army, which secured Western Sicily and captured Palermo. After the Sicilian campaign, he was appointed chief of staff of the II Corps in the Mediterranean theater and in September, 1945, became chief of staff of the Seventh Army at Heidelberg, Germany.

In April, 1946, General Willems was assigned temporary duty with the Intelligence Division of the War Department General Staff. Two months later he went to Rome, Italy, as military attache. July, 1949, he was assigned to the office of the Assistant Chief of Staff for Operations at Army Headquarters, Washington, D. C. In November, 1950, he became artillery commander of the 2d Armored Division at Fort Hood, Texas, and July, 1951, accompanied the division to Germany.

In August, 1952, General Willems was appointed Deputy to the Assistant Chief of Staff for Intelligence at Army Headquarters, Washington, D. C.

General Willems assumed command of the 3d Armored Division at Fort Knox, Kentucky, on April 15, 1955.

General Willems is married to Aileen Guy of Cheyenne, Wyoming, and has two sons, John C. and Leonard F. Willems.

General Willems was awarded the Legion of Merit for his services as chief of staff of the II Corps; the Bronze Star Medal for service in support of combat operations in Italy from March 29 to June 11, 1944; the Distinguished Service Medal for service in Italy from June 1944 to May 1945, as chief of staff of the II Corps, and an Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit for service from September 1, 1945, to March 24, 1946, as chief of staff of the Seventh Army.

Combat Command A

The history of Combat Command "A," born in Camp Polk, Louisiana, on March 1st, 1942, is one of which we all may be proud. This crack Armored Assault Force, commanded by Brig. Gen. Doyle O. Hickey, led the 3d Armored Division and other elements of the 1st United States Army in its brilliant, history-making drive across France into Belgium.

CC "A" was the first division element to engage the enemy at Villiers Fossard, Normandy, on June 29th, 1944, and on September 12th, 1944, this force breached the heavily defended Siegfried Lines; thus opening an avenue of advance for the following elements of 1st Army.

Returning to the Rhineland front after participating in the bitter Ardennes campaign, the Command led the 1st Army's assault on Cologne and its men were the first to enter the long besieged city.

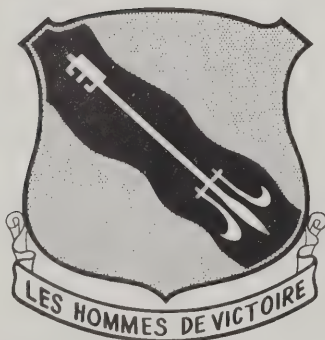

In the final offensive phase against Germany, Combat Command "A" took part in a magnificent drive, which encircled the industry center of the Ruhr basin, preventing the products of its steel works from reaching the desperately fighting German forces. Without pause for rest the Command drove Eastward until halted at Dessau by order of the High Command at the end of hostilities.

On November 10th, 1945, the 3d Armored Division was inactivated at Aalen, Germany. However, the men who fought with CC "A" in the European Theatre of War could look back with pride upon their Command and their battle honors won in Normandy, Northern France, the Ardennes-Alsace campaigns, in Central Europe and the Rhineland.

On July 15, 1947, the 3d Armored Division was reactivated at Fort Knox, Kentucky, as a training unit until March 15, 1955 when it became a TO & E division.

When the 3d Armored Division leaves for Germany in May 1956 to replace the 4th Infantry Division, the leading unit in this movement will again be Combat Command "A."

Combat Command B

Headquarters, Combat Command B was activated on 15 March 1955, as a Combat Unit preparing to ready itself as an integral part of a Gyroscope Division.

The first Commanding Officer was Capt. Charles Sternberg, who was replaced on 25 April 1955 by Major Holman E. Owney. Lt. Col. Dudley T. Parrish assumed command on 5 June 1955 and upon the assignment of Colonel James H. Polk on 27 June 1955 became the Executive Officer, CCB. Colonel Harry E. Lardin assumed command on 23 July 1955, replacing Colonel Polk who was transferred to Division Headquarters as chief of staff. Lt. Col. Parrish was transferred to Division Headquarters and was replaced by Lt. Col. James K. Tanner as Executive Officer, CCB, 1 September 1955.

The first increment of Cadre personnel was assigned on 17 March 1955 and increments of filler personnel were assigned until the unit was at 120% strength on 10 September 1955.

During the period 1 September to 30 November 1955, CCB participated in two Division CPX's and a Field Exercise which tested the newly activated command in communications, staff procedure and living under field conditions. Many valuable lessons were learned and deficiencies encountered during the exercises are being remedied as the command becomes more experienced in its various duties.

Combat Command B, for training purposes, is comprised of the 32d and the 33d Tank Battalions, the 83d Reconnaissance Battalion, and the 709th Tank Battalion. The latter unit was originally a 120 MM Gun Battalion but by Department of Army order the unit was organized as a Standard 90 MM Gun Battalion.

Combat Command B was designated to conduct training tests for all Tank Battalions. Rigid Platoon, Company and Battalion Tests were inaugurated to test the tactical proficiency of the Tank Units and their overall readiness to assume combat missions. The Tests will continue through January 1956.

Morale in the Command is high and participation in the sports program is indicative of the competitive spirit which is enabling CCB to ready itself, in minimum time, to assume its role as a Combat Unit in a Combat Division.

Brigadier General Robert W. Porter, Jr., was born in Alma, Nebraska, on April 29, 1908. He entered the United States Military Academy on July 1, 1926, and graduated on June 11, 1930. He was commissioned as a Second Lieutenant in the Cavalry on June 12, 1930.

The General saw service with many of the most famous Cavalry regiments prior to World War II. He served with the 4th, 7th, 8th and 9th Cavalry Regiments and the 91st Squadron of the 1st Cavalry Division.

Prior to the World War II General Porter also attended several service schools. These were the Signal Communications Officer Course from which he graduated in 1934; The Cavalry School Regular Course during 1935 and 1936; and the Advanced Equitation Course which he also attended in 1936.

He attended the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and graduated from there in 1941.

During July of 1942 General Porter embarked for England with the famed 1st Infantry Division. He served with the division during the campaigns in North Africa, Tunisia and Sicily. After the Sicily campaign he was assigned to the Second Corps and served with that organization until VE day.

On May 15, 1945, he was assigned to the Operations Division of the War Department. In 1948 General Porter became Executive to the Under Secretary of the Army.

Following these assignments, the General attended the National War College from which he graduated in 1950. He then commanded the 2d Armored Cavalry Regiment in Germany. This was followed by assignment to duty with SHAPE. He served as Deputy, Chief, Third Bureau of Marshal Juin's Allied Land Force Central Europe Headquarters. He served as Chief of Staff of Tenth Corps in Korea during 1952-1953.

Prior to General Porter's assignment as Assistant Division Commander of the 3d Armored Division (Spearhead) he was Military Advisor to Mr. Harold Stassen, Director of the Foreign Operations Administration.

Among his decorations and service medals General Porter has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit with one Oak Leaf Cluster and the Bronze Star Medal.

Brigadier General
ALVA R. FITCH
Division Artillery Commander

Alva R. Fitch was born in Arnhurst, Nebraska, on September 10, 1907. He was appointed to the United States Military Academy from Nebraska. He was graduated and appointed second lieutenant in the Field Artillery June 12, 1930.

From September 12, 1930 until March 19, 1931, he was a student officer at the Air Corps Primary Flying School, from which he was transferred to Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and assigned to the 16th Artillery Battalion. While assigned to this unit during the period April 13, 1931-September 17, 1933, he served as battery executive officer, battery commander, battalion liaison officer and battalion supply officer. He remained at Fort Bragg from September 28, 1933, until October 3, 1934, as a battery commander with the 83rd Field Artillery.

During the period October 4, 1934-June 27, 1936, he was stationed at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, as a student in the regular course and advanced communication course at The Artillery School. In the interim period between attendance at the courses he served as a battery officer with the 1st Field Artillery.

From August 30, 1936, until March 31, 1937, he was assigned as battalion communications and reconnaissance officer with the 36th Field Artillery at Fort Bragg.

He was transferred to Fort Sam Houston, Texas, April 2, 1937, where he served until November 19, 1939. While at this station he served as a battery commander with the 15th Field Artillery, brigade communications officer, 2d Field Artillery Brigade, and as aide-de-camp to Brigadier General Lesley J. McNair. He was transferred to the Philippine Islands in February, 1940. There he commanded Battery A of the 23rd Field Artillery Pack (PS) until the outbreak of World War II. During the siege of the Philippines he was commanding officer, 2d battalion, 91st Field Artillery (PA) until taken prisoner after the surrender of Bataan by the Japanese May 28, 1942. He was a prisoner of war on Luzon until December, 1944, at which time he was taken to Japan. He was held in Japan and Korea until September 2, 1945.

After a brief period of hospitalization and leave, he was assigned as a student in the 27th General Staff Class, Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, from February 12 to July 11, 1946. Upon completion of the course he remained as an instructor in the Language Section of the college until August 14, 1947.
